

Dear Editor,

They have sold their conscience

The likes of Festus KEYAMO (SANDra), the garrulous stomach infrastructure FFK, their drug Lord and other APC evil men know the truth, but they have sold their consciences to the devil. Nothing good can come out them again except lies and evil. And then, if you explain this till eternity, the gullible, grossly deceived and hypnotized APC Supporters will never understand what you are saying. They don't have a mind of their own anymore. They only believe what either Keyamo or FFK or Bayo Onanuga or Chief Thug MC Oluomo or the grey afro hair Professor says, capitalize absolutely on it, and that constitutes the basis for their blind, unintelligible submissions. They can't engage you on any meaningful or reasonable talk, because they don't have anything to talk about. They only talk when they have hatched an evil propaganda. Now that the Yes Daddy saga is gradually or has died down, have you heard them utter any word again? Have you heard them engage anyone reasonably? They have all gone mute until their devil's Advocates come up with another evil propaganda, then they'll start making noise all over the social media.

They don't know how to engage people intelligibly, sell their drug Lord Candidate, canvass for votes, go to the polls, organize or participate in free, fair, transparent and credible elections and win. What they know is how to threaten, suppress, oppress, maim, kill Voters and falsify figures, sabotage the BVAS machine and announce fake result, declare the BAT by night. That's why when you take the discussion off their areas of strength, even the Professors amongst them will go mute or at best talk gibberish in order to find words to support their evil.

Dear Editor,

In Nigeria there are Professors and there are Professors!

In my primary school days one morning during assembly, the school headmaster while addressing us, was heard saying: "Those who will go to Enyimba Stadium for the celebration of independence, 1st October, are those in primary 4, 5 and 6. Those in primary 1, 2 and 3 are not permitted to go. They must stay at home doing bad and rude things to their parents. "Some of the teachers, in support of his bizarre statement, laughed. "BAD, RUDE things" coming from the mouth of a man who was supposed to be a beacon of light for the little children under his supervision. And the women who were supposed to be good mothers' eggs him on. As a little 12 years old pupil then, I was dumbfounded!

That was many years ago, yet in our society of today, we see many of such a man dressed in a higher institution gown and higher rank called Professors. Out of their mouths, corruption oozes. Out of their character, evil sprays. Where they ought to profess light and truth in a society that clamors for just and equitable representation, they rather go haywire with darkness and lies to destroy the very society they ought to build with good conduct and good faith.

They either write long epistles to call the upright youths who advocate for good leadership in a country that has the enormous natural resources to be a first world country, "headless mobs", speak tongue-in-cheek to call the same youths "fascists" or go in bed with convicted drug barons to usurp the people's mandate, then scream "go to court!". But there comes the assurance that we have PROFESSORS whose integrity is so tightly knitted that no amount of razor cutting corruption can sway them into partaking in deeds that could put the nation in jeopardy. We have them in Remi Sonaiyas, Stella Okunnas, and Nnennaya Otis. With such PROFESSORS on the good side of history, a New Nigeria is Possible.

Dear Editor,

Happy Birthday

Iremember in 1997 when Alhaji Abdul Aziz Garuba was 60 and I was commissioned by the Governorship Campaign Group to publish a write up on this. I felt he was so old Haven just retired from the civil service as DG of internal Affairs ministry. Today, I am not just less than 6 years to 60 but my friend whom I see as a peer mate is 60. The almighty 60 where Aziz Garuba declared his Ambition to rule Edo State. But Mr Peter choose no politics but choose the pen. Is the pen actually mightier than the sword? Yes, I think it's true.

But one thing common among them is that both are strong means of attaining power.

Yes, I remember another commonality between Amb. Aziz and veteran Publisher Peter Emuekpere they both have this predilection to the truth, they are both humanists, they have also at different levels champion the cause of mankind. I therefore lower my winds in respect for u Peter and wish u greatness in the continuing years. Happy birthday my great sixtogenarian.
