Prince Moses Duku

Ahmed Tinubu's 'Decade of Gas' development and utilisation Agenda targeted towards a future of clean, affordable and reliable energy for Nigerian homes and to sustainably power the country's renascent industrial development. Greenwille Gas Liquefaction Plant set up with a 100% Foreign Direct Investment of more than half a billion US Dollars is located in Rumuji, Rivers State. The company's Gas Liquefaction Plant, the first of its kind in West Africa, is currently equipped with three liquefaction trains with a combined production capacity of 2,250-metric tonnes of LNG per day. Two additional trains have been ordered and upon installation, will increase total production capacity of the Liquefaction Plant to 5,250 metric tonnes of LNG per day. The company has developed Nigeria's pioneer virtual pipeline system for supply of gas across Nigeria. To that effect, Greenwille LNG has introduced into Nigeria the first LNG-fuelled trucks to distribute gas all across the country even as it has embarked on the construction of gas refuelling and LCNG facilities across the country for easy access to affordable fuel for power, as well as for industrial and automotive uses across the country. With a proactive gas hubs expansion plan ongoing, Greenwille LNG Gas Hubs are already operative in Kaduna, Koto-Karfe in Kogi State, Shagamu in Ogun State, Benin in Edo, and Rumuji in Rivers State. Greenwille is a proudly one-stop solution for gas power anywhere in Nigeria with a capacity to sustainably supply LNG for industries with requirements of between 1MW to 250 MW. With Greenwille LNG, customers are assured premium product quality and reliable gas supply to meet fuel needs all year round. Greenwille LNG operates a socially responsible and soundly ethical business process and proudly pays responsible attention to the health, safety and environment of its employees, contractors, stakeholders and the public. Media practitioners across the spectrum in Nigeria widely acknowledge on the merit that, Prince Moses Duku goes to Greenwille LNG Limited with a tremendously robust, well-earned and respectable goodwill with the Press across Nigeria, especially with his highly functional and developed annual media parley events in Lagos and Abuja over the years.
