

HOW NIGERIA CAN END INSECURITY IN 24 HOURS WITHOUT BLOODSHED

The Hard Truth Politicians Won't Tell You

Yes, you read that right. 24 Hours. No bullets. No mass arrests. No state of emergency.

Before you call it impossible, answer this: How long did it take Nigeria to shut down during COVID-19? 24 hours. How long did it take banks to freeze #EndSARS accounts? 24 hours. How long does it take politicians to pass budgets that benefit them? Overnight.

Insecurity in Nigeria is not a capacity problem. It is a willpower problem. Nigeria is not insecure because we lack soldiers. We are insecure because we lack sincerity. 90% of our insecurity is man-made, funded, and protected by the same system that claims to fight it. You cannot defeat what you are feeding. So here's how to end it in 24 hours — without shedding blood:

HOURLY TO HOURLY: TURN OFF THE TAP

1. Publish the Names of All Terror Financiers and Their Bank Accounts. The NSA, DSS, NFIU, and CBN already have this list. Every bandit kingpin, every kidnap sponsor, every oil thief has a Nigerian bank account. Freeze them all at 8am. Name and shame by 9am. When the money stops, the guns go silent.
2. Suspend All Illegal Mining Licenses in Zamfara, Niger, and Katsina. Banditry is business. Illegal gold and lithium are the payroll. Shut down the sites, arrest the foreign collaborators, and you've cut off 60% of Northwest funding before lunch.
3. Switch Off Network Cover in 12 Known Forest Camps. NCC can do this in 10 minutes. No phone signal, no ransom negotiation, no coordination. Criminals need networks more than they need bullets.

HOURLY TO HOURLY: REMOVE THE UMBRELLA

4. Withdraw Police and Military Protection from All Non-State Actors
Every big man with 10 soldiers is a potential warlord. Recall all orderlies from traditional rulers, politicians, and businessmen not entitled by law. Return those 40,000 men to street patrol. Insecurity drops 30% by noon.
5. Release the Names of All Repentant Terrorists in Government Custody. The public deserves to know who we're "rehabilitating." Transparency ends conspiracy. When villagers know the killer of their chief is now a "repentant" contractor, they lose faith in government. End it.
6. Order Every Governor to Relocate to the Worst LGA in Their State for 24 Hours
Leadership is presence. When a Governor sleeps in Kaura Namoda or Isi-Uzo, DPOs will work. CPs will not sleep. Insecurity survives because power is too far from pain.

HOURLY TO HOURLY: GIVE THE PEOPLE POWER

7. Activate State and Community Policing by Presidential Proclamation
We don't need a constitutional amendment to start. IGP can devolve operational control to states today under Section 215(3). Amotekun, Ebube Agu, Civilian JTF — fund them, arm them, legalize them by dawn.
8. Pay All Security Allowances Owed from 2015 to Date

A hungry policeman is a dangerous policeman. A soldier owed 8 months' allowance will sell info. CBN can credit alerts by 6pm. Motivation beats motivation speeches.

9. Presidential Broadcast: "From Midnight, Any Traditional Ruler or LG Chairman in Whose Domain Kidnapping occurs will be suspended" Watch how fast communities will police themselves. When responsibility has consequences, complicity dies. The biggest enablers of insecurity are the local leaders who see, know, and keep quiet.

THE BITTER TRUTH;

We can end insecurity in 24 hours because insecurity is not the disease. It is the symptom. The disease is elite conspiracy, institutional corruption, and political profit from chaos. Boko Haram did not swear in lawmakers. Bandits don't award oil blocks. Unknown gunmen don't approve security votes. Nigerians do. So the real question is not "Can we end it in 24 hours?" The real question is: "Do we want to?" Because the day Nigeria's ruling class decides that peace is more profitable than war, that security votes should secure lives not pockets, that one Nigerian life is worth more than one oil well — insecurity will end before the next sunrise.

No bullets. No blood. Just balls. Political will is the most powerful weapon Nigeria has never used. The clock is ticking. Mr. President, your 24 hours start now.
