RAISING A GODLY GENERATION

WHAT LEGACY ARE YOU BUILDING FOR OUR FUTURE GENERATION

What's the essence of our existence, what are we living for? What does God expect of us and what will be my legacy; these and more question are what I always ask myself. Life has taught me that the true essence of life is impact. Impact is the best legacy we can leave on earth. Legacy is not what I did for myself or my children. It is what I am doing for the next generation; the next generation is built from the seed we sow today but we have concerns because the next generation are stranded; some want to go to school but they are hindered because their parent cannot afford to pay their fees, others are schooling but cannot meet up with the bills because they cannot afford to meet up with the daily exigencies and survival so they drop out of school. Sometimes when they drop out of school they become vulnerable to whatever comes their way because they have to survive. Most times we agree with the slang "life no balance" you see a young girl with good grade (excellent result) but she is unable to further her education while others that have all the opportunities cannot make good use of it because they cannot understand what their less privileged colleagues are going through. A lot of our willing youths have dropped out because they cannot afford to meet up with their bills. These and more was what propelled the whole idea of TGWAC. The need to give back to the society through ensuring that our children in school who find it hard to cope with their bills and daily needs are supported and encouraged. There is this joy you feel when you are able to give hope to the hopeless and lives again to as many that have almost given up.

We have the case of a young boy that desperately wants to go to school and unfortunately his mother who was their bread winner died when he just got admission. That was the end of his dream. We also have a scenario of a young girl who is from a broken home who barely can feed in school because she has no solid support. We also have a situation where a young man lost his father and was denied the basic need of life by his uncles and he almost committed suicide, thank God he is doing great today. There are several scenarios of our children struggling with their education simply because of one unfortunate event or the other that was not their own making. Is the society supposed to abandon such young boys and girls to their fate? Certainly No. They need a future and that future is you and me lending a helping hand. As a Parent God may have given you the capacity and wherewithal to take care and minister to the needs of your own children. This is great but what about those out there who need support and encouragement to pull through? It is my responsibility and your responsibility to give them a future.

We always say children are the future of tomorrow but the question is, are they really still the future? When most of them are compromising and giving up their dreams for quick money making rituals and criminal activities? Are they really the future generation when our young girls have become chicken in their slaughter houses because of looking money? When most female students in the campus have turned to prostitutes all in a bid to meet up with the skyrocketed cost of education which most parents cannot meet up with. Money indeed is the root of all evil but we can't keep quiet when we think of our children because the wall you ignore today may be the very wall that will hinder the glorious future of our own children. This is why TGWAC is doing all it can to support and encourage students who are faced with meeting up with the challenges of meeting up in school. Even without big or major sponsors but few partners who are also concern with the future of our young ones we are trudging on. Through our contributions and little support we have been able to give hope to our hopeless children by paying school fees, send token as pocket money to some youths in school, mentor and encourage them to be their best, encourage them to get a skill that can also help them while in school and God has really been faithful. We are not giving up as we are still trusting God to raise willful helpers that will partner with us to build the broken walls of these children and give them hope for a better tomorrow. We build our legacy piece by piece; we want our legacy to stand upon the lives of teenagers and youths who have no hope. We want to give knowledge to the younger generation and be part of changing the narratives of their lives by giving them opportunity for a better tomorrow so as to discourage them from a life of recklessness, waywardness and destructive tendencies that may not augur well for our own privileged children and the society at large.

It may not be possible to change the world at a time but we can build a wall. If you build a wall and I build a wall then we will have a building, a solid one at that. True leaders don't invest only in structures but they, they invest and impact in people especially the younger generation because they are our future. Truly success without a successor is failure. As a Parent who is well off we need your support. A little drop here and there can make a huge difference.
