WHAT MANNER OF GIANT?

Nigerian is the most populous nation in Africa and popularly referred to as the giant of Africa. But 62 years after independence the Nigerian nation is still groping in darkness because of its inept and corrupt leadership. Nigerians are disillusioned. Nigerians are frustrated and tired. The leadership has completely alienated the people from the ideals of true Nationalism. Nigerians have been disconnected from being conscious of the greatness of their country. Nigerians have been misled by their leaders who over the years have failed to lead them towards the path of greatness. Nigerian leaders have not only milked the nation dry but has totally impoverished her citizens. Nigeria political leaders have massively looted the country to the detriment of the people. At 62 Nigeria is still crawling instead of being a great example to the black race and at the forefront of development. As of today every sector in Nigeria is epileptic. Education is in shambles, our health system is nothing to write home about, our roads are in very bad shape, there is palpable fears across the land because of high level of insecurity while our political leaders are living in affluence junketing to every part of the world in their private jets. The Presidency has over four aircrafts in her fleet while a hand full of leaders especially politicians have private jets and choppers for their personal use. Our economy is down and rife with debts while some of our leaders are accumulating wealth and stealing our Oil resources. Our politicians are paying as much as one hundred million Naira to buy just a form to contest for political position while millions of dollars are spent to buy the conscience of delegates to get votes. Nigeria is a nation with great potentials but with a bad structure and corrupt leadership.

Despite the present rot in the country, Nigerians are optimistic. This is why the people are coming out in droves especially the youths in a bid to take their country back from those who have hijacked the political and economic system. Nigerians are becoming conscious and desirous of a true change. A change from the old order to a new order. A change from the culture of corruption with impunity to the culture of transparency, honesty and patriotism. At 62 years Nigerians should be fully prepared to chase out the crazy bald head who have held the nation to ransom for decades by recycling themselves within the political system. As the 2023 election draws near and campaigns have started Nigerians should open their eyes and not allow themselves to be deceived again. Nigerians need a leader who is firm, decisive, energetic, honest, transparent, intelligent with a passion and good knowledge of the country multi- ethnic diversity and the ability to transform the Nigeria from a consuming nation to a productive one

We need a leader who can rebrand Nigeria for effective Nationhood and consciousness. Nigerians should not allow primordial, religious or ethnic sentiments to becloud their sense of reasoning while casting their votes. This is also not the time to vote for party. It is time to vote for individuals who are competent and have integrity and a passion to make Nigeria better. For Nigeria at 62 it is not yet Uhuru. Nigeria must get it right this time. The time is February 2023. Enough is Enough. We wish all Nigerians and our numerous subscribers and readers a flourishing 62nd year anniversary. Let's keep hope alive. We are optimistic the future of Nigeria is going to be brighter. The forces of good over evil must prevail.

Happy reading.
